

P. O. Box 771
Dover, NJ 07802
USA

www.calvarycomics.com

Dear Nate,

I was just thinking the other day, imagining what a hole there'd be in Christian comics without you, without the COMIX35 and CCI sites. I truly mean this; no 'kissing up' here. You really are so invaluable in this very special field of ministry. Many others have already thrown in the towel when, if they had only prayed and remained in prayer until receiving the Lord's counsel, they might be bearing good fruit. I know by the Spirit of God that if I wait until some editor gives me a commercial assignment that openly glorifies our Lord Jesus Christ in a manner that does not compromise the Gospel, I may well be waiting until doomsday. That's why so many have quit. I understand that these are strongholds and we must take the 'land' as in a military campaign, in the secret closet of prayer where God gives us our marching orders.

"The Dave Roever Story" cartoon tract contains an anointed testimony and is a beautiful example of what a Christian comics story should look like (yes, I know you packaged it, and Kerry Gammill and Carlos Garzon drew it).

You are greatly beloved and of great value to this part of the kingdom, Nate!

Kind regards in Christ Jesus,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads 'ALEC STEVENS' in all caps. Below the name is a simple drawing of a fish, a common symbol for Christianity. The signature is enclosed in a hand-drawn, irregular oval shape.